We would like to point out that you use our presences in the social media and their functions on your own responsibility. This applies in particular to the use of the interactive functions (e.g. commenting, sharing, rating). Alternatively, you can also access the information that we make available in the social media on our own website.

8.1 Data processed by social media

When you visit our social media sites, the operators of the social media collect, among other things, your IP address as well as other information that is present on your PC in the form of cookies. This information is used to provide us, as the operator of the site, with statistical information about the use of the site. The data collected about you in this context is processed by the operators of the social media and may be transferred to countries outside the European Union. What information the operator of the respective social network receives and how it is used is described in the privacy statements of the respective social networks. There you will also find information on how to contact them.

You can find more detailed information on this under the following links:

Instagram: <https://help.instagram.com/155833707900388>
<https://www.instagram.com/about/legal/privacy/>

LinkedIn: <https://www.linkedin.com/legal/privacy-policy>

In what way the operators of the social media use data from the visit of our presence in the social media for their own purposes, to what extent activities on the presences in social media are assigned to individual users, how long the operators store this data and whether data from a visit to the presences in social media are passed on to third parties, is not conclusively and clearly stated by the operators of the social media and is not known to us.

When you access our social media sites, the IP address assigned to your end device is transmitted to the operator of the respective social network. The social networks also store information about the end devices of the users (e.g. as part of the "login notification" function); if necessary, the operators of the social media are thus able to assign IP addresses to individual users.

If you as a user are currently logged in to the respective social network, a cookie with your individual identification in this social network is located on your end device. This enables the operator of the social network to track that you have visited a certain page and how you have used it. Based on this data, content or advertising can be tailored to your previous website visits.

If you want to avoid this, you should log out of the respective social network or deactivate the "stay logged in" function, delete the cookies present on your device and close and restart your browser. In this way, login information via which you can be directly identified will be deleted. This allows you to use our social media presence without revealing your user ID. When you access interactive features of the site (like, comment, share, message, etc.), a login screen will appear. Once you have logged in, you will again be recognisable to the social network you are using as a specific user.

Information on how you can manage or delete existing information within the social network can be found on the above-mentioned support pages of the respective social network.

8.2 Data processed by us

The data you enter on social networks, in particular your user name and the content published under your account, are processed by us insofar as we respond to your messages, if applicable. If you mention us via an @ or a # or similar, this mention will be published under your user name on our page, if applicable. The data freely published and disseminated by you on the respective social network may thus be included by us in our offer and made accessible to other users of the respective social network. If you mark our appearance in the social media with "Like" or "Follow" or a similar interaction, this will be communicated to us by the respective social network with your user name and link to your account.

8.2.2 Legal basis of processing
